

3 Human camera.

Get theatrical with this fun activity. It will push your child's observation and recall skills. Take it in turns to be the photographer and then the human camera. Find a vista or a close up and use your human camera to take a quick snapshot. Then have them describe what they saw in those few seconds.

EQUIPMENT:

- Get theatrical with this fun activity. It will push your child's observation and recall skills. Take it in turns to be the photographer and then the human camera. Find a vista or a close up and use your human camera to take a quick snapshot. Then have them describe what they saw in those few seconds.

INSTRUCTIONS:

- Take your human camera (child) and get them to shut their eyes or use blindfold.
- Safely direct them to your chosen view.
- Using your best acting ability, set up your camera. Using their legs as tripod, adjust the height, angle their head etc. Then, get them to stay still.
- Using your own method to open the shutter (their eyes). I like gently twisting the ear as the shutter button).
- They will then open their eyes for an agreed amount of time. 3-5 seconds works well. Shut their eyes by using the button again. The view should be a surprise to them.
- Get them then describe what they saw in as much detail as possible.
- Vary the photos. Panoramic, landscapes, close up of varying objects such as bark, rocks etc
